NEW QUESTION: 1

Asher manages a global workplace and facilities team. Currently, his team receives all global requests in a channel called #help-workplace. Because the channel now receives hundreds of requests per day, the support team asks Asher if they can create regional channels to make triaging requests more manageable.

How should Asher respond to this request?

- A. Continue to use one centralized channel to minimize confusion for channel members on where workplace requests should be submitted, but require that members start posts with the name of the region where they're requesting assistance.
- B. Allow each region to create new channels and name them after famous landmarks in their region, then assign regional team members to monitor each channel.
- C. Create a private channel for the global workplace team to triage requests from #help-workplace into the appropriate regions.

D. Create new regional channels and name them using the #help-workplace-region format, then assign regional team members to monitor each channel.
