NEW QUESTION: 3A security engineer has been hired to design a device that will enable the exfiltration of data from within a well-defended network perimeter during an authorized test. The device must bypass all firewalls and NIDS in place, as well as allow for the upload of commands from a centralized command and control answer.The total cost of the device must be kept to a minimum in case the device is discovered during an assessment. Which of the following tools should the engineer load onto the device being designed?A. TCP beacon broadcast softwareB. Custom firmware with rotating key generationC. Reverse shell endpoint listenerD. Automatic MITM proxyAnswer: D

NEW QUESTION: 4A Deployment Professional is investigating why a rule has stopped triggering. The rule is configured to monitor certain events from a specific syslog based Log Source. Upon investigation, the Deployment Professional observes that no events are being received by that Log Source in the Log Activity Tab.The customer has recently reconfigured the sending system but demonstrates that events are still being sent to the QRadar Event Processor. After running a tcpdump on the Event Processor, events are indeed observed coming from the IP address of the sending system.How can the Deployment Professional find an event in the QRadar GUI to discover which Log Source the events are being processed?A. Network Activity Tab -> Add Filter -> "Parameter Field" select "Payload Contains" and enter a unique identifier based off the tcpdump dataB. Network Activity Tab -> Advanced Search -> "Parameter Field" select "Hostname" and enter a hostnameC. Log Activity Tab -> Add Filter -> "Parameter Field" select "Payload Contains" and enter a unique identifier based off the tcpdump dataD. Log Activity Tab -> Add Filter -> "Parameter Field" enter "Hostname" and enter a hostnameAnswer: DExplanation:Explanation/Reference:The Network Activity tab allows you to investigate flows being sent to QRadar Network Anomaly Detection in real-time, perform powerful searches, and view network activity using configurable time-series charts. A flow is a communication session between two hosts. Viewing flow information allows you to determine how the traffic is communicated, what is communicated (if the content capture option is enabled), and who is communicating. Flow data also includes details such as protocols, ASN values, IFIndex values, and priorities. Incorrect Answers: A, C: We cannot monitor these events, but we can monitor the network activity. References: IBM Security QRadar Network Anomaly Detection Version 7.1.0 MR1 Users Guide, page 13
