NEW QUESTION: 1

A technician has been dispatched to investigate connectivity problems of a recently renovated office. The technician has found that the cubicles were wired so that the network cables were run inside the conduit with the electrical cabling. Which of the following would MOST likely resolve the connectivity issue?

- A. Re-run the network cabling so that they are 12 inches or more away from the electrical lines.
- B. Power-cycle the computers and switches to re-establish the network connection.
- C. Re-run the network cabling through the ceiling alongside the lights to prevent interference.
- D. Test the wiring in the network jacks for faults using a cable verifier.

Answer: A

Explanation:

The electric cables create electric field around them and can interrupt in internet connectivity as well. It is quite possible that this is the cause which is creating the connectivity issue.

NEW QUESTION: 3

Which feature can you use to monitor traffic on a switch by replicating it to another port or ports on the same switch?

- A. SPAN
- B. copy run start
- C. the ICMP Echo IP SLA
- D. traceroute

Answer: A

Explanation:
A source port, also called a monitored port, is a switched or routed port that you monitor for network traffic analysis. In a single local SPAN session or RSPAN source session, you can monitor source port traffic, such as received (Rx), transmitted (Tx), or bidirectional (both). The switch supports any number of source ports (up to the maximum number of available ports on the switch) and any number of source VLANs.

A source port has these characteristics:

It can be any port type, such as EtherChannel, Fast Ethernet, Gigabit Ethernet, and so forth.

It can be monitored in multiple SPAN sessions.

It cannot be a destination port.

Each source port can be configured with a direction (ingress, egress, or both) to monitor. For EtherChannel sources, the monitored direction applies to all physical ports in the group.

Source ports can be in the same or different VLANs.

For VLAN SPAN sources, all active ports in the source VLAN are included as source ports.
